Behind the scenes: Digital Journalism

Written by Lia S.

You have seen the Sequoia podcast many times, but have you ever wondered what goes on behind the scenes? Well, I'm about to tell you everything that goes into the production process!

First, we start with researching the air date. We look for holidays, upcoming school events, and leadership socials.

Next, we write the script and check with the anchors to make sure it sounds good.

After that, we start filming. Most of the time we record in the tech lab. We also record other segments like interviews and PSAs.

Next comes the fun part: Editing and graphics! We import the clips from the SD card and put them into either iMovie or Capcut. There we trim the clips and sequence them. We also make graphics in Canva, such as intros and outros. When everything is done, we export the full bulletin and we're ready to air!

Interview with Mrs. Reinsch

"How long have you been teaching for?"

"I have been teaching for 12 years."

Question 1

Question 2

What's your favorite part of teaching?

"My favorite part is getting to hang out with kids, learn more when teaching, and giving kids second chances who might not have had one before."
